Note to the Chef de Cabinet

Group photograph of the Secretary-General with youth delegates attending the 65th Session of the General Assembly

Each year, a number of Member States include youth representatives in their delegations to the General Assembly. With the ongoing International Year of Youth, it is envisaged that more Member States than in previous years will include youth representatives in their delegations to the General Assembly. Youth delegates have enriched the debate and policy dialogue at the General Assembly and have strengthened existing channels of communication between the United Nations and young people. Upon return to their home countries, youth delegates often work to promote the elaboration and implementation of youth policies at the national level and to encourage other young people to participate more fully in national and international development.

In light of the importance that DESA attributes to youth delegates, and in light of the International Year of Youth, I would like to recommend that the Secretary-General consider a group photograph opportunity with this year's youth delegates, preferably during the period of 4-6 October 2010, when all the youth delegates will be in New York for the deliberations of the Third Committee on youth issues. In previous years, the Secretary-General agreed to take such a group photograph with the youth delegates, which was one of the highlights of their stay.
