Dear Mrs. Deputy Secretary-General:

It is a pleasure for me to send you copies of the book "It is hard being young in Latin America. The open challenges." The book has been compiled by the signatory, and edited by Editorial Sudamericana/Random House Mondadori, the UNDP Regional Bureau for Latin America and the Caribbean, and the AECID, through the UNDP Spain Fund "Towards an integrated and inclusive development in Latin America and the Caribbean".

The book has its origination in the Second Forum on Strategic Social Thinking and is presided by contributions from Rebecca Grynspan, UNDP Associate Administrator and Mirta Roses, Director of the Pan American Health Organization. Likewise, it includes a special section by the Nobel Prize Winner of Economy, Joseph Stiglitz, "Why the American economy exploded."

We truthfully would like to thank you for your contribution to this work, which compiles the presentations performed by social authorities of 15 countries in Latin America and Spain.

"It's hard being young in Latin America. Open Challenges" has been presented in the Third Forum for Strategic Social Thinking, February 22nd and 23rd, 2010, at the UN headquarters in New York.

If you require more copies of the book, please contact Joaquín Mirkin, Institutional Networks Coordinator of the Spain-UNDP Fund +1 212 906 6970

Our most sincere appreciation for having been enriched by your presence and outstanding contributions to this work, product of the Forum for Strategic Social Thinking, in a time of huge challenges for the region.

Kind regards,

Bernardo Kliksberg

Chief Adviser of the UNDP Regional Bureau for Latin America and the Caribbean and
