Dear Secretary General

I write from Save the Children, on behalf of the 3,200 organisations worldwide represented on the enclosed statement; urging inclusion of an explicit reference to the criteria that 'no target be considered met unless met for all social and economic groups' in the Secretary General's Synthesis Report.

The signatories to this statement are notable, both in relation to their number and diversity.

From gender CBOs in rural Ghana; to international environmental charities; global coalitions; disability rights organisations in Nepal and household name development NGOs, this statement demonstrates civil society's collective commitment to ensuring that equity is embedded at the core of the new sustainable development framework.

As a concrete recognition that inequality is not an inevitable outcome of progress, it is our sincere hope that this global civil society message resonates, and is reflected in the Secretary General's Synthesis Report with an explicit commitment to 'no target being considered met unless met for all social and economic groups'.

Representatives of the statement would welcome the opportunity to meet with you to discuss this call and a broader commitment to advancing equity in the Secretary General's Synthesis Report and Post 2015 Framework. One of my colleagues will be in touch shortly to arrange this, should your schedule allow.

best wishes

Justin Forsyth

GLOBAL CIVIL SOCIETY STATEMENT:

NO TARGET MET UNLESS MET FOR ALL

Inequalities are not an inevitable outcome of development progress. If we are to recognize the truly transformative potential of the new sustainable development framework we must embed equity at its core.

No one must be left behind by virtue of their gender, age, disability, income, geography or ethnicity.

We, the undersigned organizations, urge the United Nations Secretary General to include an explicit commitment in his Synthesis Report on the Post-2015 Sustainable Development Agenda that no target should be considered met unless it is met for all social and economic groups.
